I drive truck all over the country, and XM radio gives me the information I need concerning the weather and traffic in the major cities before I get there, allowing me to reroute or delay going in if weather or traffic is bad. XM radio is a great asset to drivers. You can spend your time concentrating on your driving instead of continually searching on the FM or AM channels for music or news, and usually you can never find traffic information when you really need it. I love XM radio and it is getting better all the time. If AM and FM is so worried about XM maybe they should do more to compete with this service. Sincerely Dwight Durfee
